A Place at the Table; Growing Food, Jobs, and Hope on the Urban Frontier
An Exclusive Evening with farmer, author, photographer, and local food advocate Michael Ableman

Saturday, January 13, 2018, 6:30 pm.—8:30 p.m.
Minnesota Landscape Arboretum
Tashjian Bee and Pollinator Discovery Center | Chaska, MN
$70 Lakewinds Food Co-Op Catered Dinner with wine tasting

"Michael Ableman has a finely honed sensibility—be gardens society, grows well-being, weeds out despair, and sows hope." Paul Hawken, Author

Join us for wine, appetizers, dinner, a presentation of Michael’s soon to be released, TED talk, and audience discussion with Michael and LaDonna Redmond, Arboretum community liaison, Seward diversity and community engagement manager, and food justice activist.

Learn how urban agriculture can be scaled to production levels, increase community resilience and support concrete social goals.

The evening will begin with a local wine tasting and nibble, then move into a slow food meal provided by Lakewinds Food Co-Op. As you depart, you’ll have the opportunity to purchase Michael’s latest book, “Street Farm: Growing Food, Jobs, and Hope on the Urban Frontier.”

The lingering flavors of the meal and the presentation will inspire you in the range of creative and innovative ways that you can impact your own neighborhood and community; one handful of seeds, one bucket of compost, one meal, one farm or garden at a time.

Please Note: Meal will be Vegan and Gluten Free; we regret that customized changes to the menu cannot be accommodated.
